ORGANIZATION AND ADMINISTRATION

The 92nd Bombardment Group(VH) was reactivated on 4 August 1946 at Ft. Worth, Texas, and later transferred to Smoky Hill Army Air Field, Salina, Kansas. 1/ From there the Group was transferred to Spokane Army Air Field, Spokane, Washington. 2/

On 1 July 1947, the 92nd Bombardment Group, comprised of three Bombardment Squadrons and a Group Headquarters Squadron, had a personnel strength of one officer and one enlisted man assigned to each of the four Squadrons. 3/

The first notable increase in personnel strength of the Group was the transfer of additional personnel from the 718th Bombardment Squadron, 28th Bombardment Group(VH), Rapid City, S.D. on 7 July 1947. 4/

As of 31 July 1947 the personnel strength of the 92nd Bombardment Group was 76 officers and 237 enlisted men. 5/

Organization for reactivation of the Group was commenced with the appointment of key personnel. 6/

The mission of the 92nd Bombardment Group is to train for the bombing of any target, anywhere in the world, with very heavy bombers. 7/

The S-1 Section under the supervision of the Group Adjutant and the Personnel Officer was busily engaged in the processing of the additional personnel assigned to the Group during the month of July.

The S-2 Section of the 92nd Bombardment Group was organized under the direction of Major Charles F. Casey, Intelligence Officer for Spokane Army Air Field. Three enlisted men were assigned to aid in the organization of the S-2 Section.

The month of July was primarily a month devoted to organization, planning and requisitioning of needed materials, and the remodeling of the briefing room and office. In accomplishing these feats, the S-2 personnel underwent difficulties in securing supplies and equipment necessary to the operation of the S-2 Section.

During the month of July Major Casey drew up a training program that when completed and execution begins, the entire personnel of the 92nd Bomb Group will be instructed in the ways and means of Intelligence. Plans also were made and action taken in developing the Maps and Charts Section. This section will be, in the near future, capable of supplying the Group with information about, and maps and charts covering any section of the World.

On 21 July 1947 the Group Operations Office was opened. A S-3 Officer and key personnel were appointed. 8/ The S-3 Section was involved in duties of organization and preparation for the operations of B-29 aircraft to be assigned to the 92nd Bomb Group during the month of July. 9/

The Group Engineering Section was organized during July. Organization of Squadron Engineering Sections was also started during this period. 10/

PERSONNEL

During the month of July 1947, the 92nd Bombardment Group was first commanded by Lt. Col. Frank A. Sharp. 11/ Later in the month Colonel Albert J. Shower assumed command of the Group. Captain Creighton B. Olson was appointed Group Adjutant. Other key personnel in the Group were as follows:

Group Operations Officer	Major Lloyd W. Preston
Group Engineering Officer	1st Lt. Roy M. Walsh
Asst. Adjutant & Personnel Officer	1st Lt. William L. Thompson 12/

Due to circumstances normal to initial organization, there was a definite shortage of trained personnel within the 92nd Bombardment Group during the month of July.

SUPPLY

During July 1947 few supplies of all types had been received by the newly organized 92nd Bomb Group. The maintenance tool kits received during the latter part of the month were incomplete and inadequate for the maintenance of B-29 aircraft. No maintenance stands were received by the end of the month. 13/

Since no aircraft were assigned to the Group until the last two days of July, no great hindrance resulted from the above lack of supplies.

MAINTENANCE

As previously stated in this history, the Group Engineering Section was established during the month of July. No serious maintenance problems were encountered during this period because no aircraft were assigned to the Group until 31 July 1947. Organization of Squadron Engineering Sections progressed during the month. 14/

FACILITIES

Facilities for the 92nd Bombardment Group are considered on the whole adequate to meet the minimum requirements of the Group. A shortage of office space for Squadron Engineering Sections caused one of the Squadrons to submit a request for the construction of an Engineering Office Building. 15/

TRAINING

During the month of July flying training was accomplished by utilizing "Base Aircraft" due to the fact that no aircraft were assigned to the Group. The above mentioned aircraft consisted of C-47, B-25, and AT-6 types.

Due to the shortage of trained aircrew personnel, a training program similar to those used during the recent war for the training of combat crews was started within the Group. 16/

INTERVIEW WITH MAJOR L.W. PRESTON, GROUP S-3, 5 SEPTEMBER 1947.

* *

During July no B-29 Aircraft were assigned to the 92nd Bomb Group until 29 July 1947. Flying time wa accomplished using Base Aircraft which consisted of C-47s and B-25s, and AT-6 types.

There was the problem of untrained personnel. To alleviate this situation, a training program similar to that used during the recent war for the training of combat crews was started within the Group.
